Plan Development of Sandstone Quarries

Product Said to Be Equal of Calgary Sandstone—Quarry Located on Embarras River—Eastern Capitalist Will Install Machine and Commence Work

At the mouth of the Embarras river, near to the coal fields of the Brazos, and about a quarter of a mile from the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific which is opening up these fields, one of the largest and most potentially productive sandstone quarries on the north American continent, is shortly to be developed, and the city of Edmonton, and all the towns of Northern and Central Alberta, will be supplied with stone which is superior to the best Calgary sandstone because more uniform, white, quite as hard and in every way a first class building material.

The quarry is found along the banks of the Embarras river, and is included in a land holding of 120 acres owned by W. Wade of this city, but shortly to be turned over to an eastern capitalist, who will develop the quarry with all the speed. The land has been in Mr. Wade's possession for the past two years, but the nature of the sandstone has not been developed hitherto, and in fact the existence of the quarry has not been made public at any time. However, with the construction of the railway within a reasonable distance of the quarry, the prospective construction of a spur to the quarry and a bridge over the river next spring, the project is a distinctly feasible one, and immediate steps for the development of the new industry, are to be taken.

The sandstone is buff in color. It extends along the bank of the river for over a mile, and the massive stone shoulder in one place shows a body 800 feet long by 70 feet in height, and extending into the bank a distance of 1,000 feet. These facts were ascertained by Geo. E. Turner, building commissioner for the Edmonton school board, who was appointed to report upon the proposition some time ago, as an independent expert.

The stone is a heavy medium grained sandstone of even color and texture.

Mr. Turner in discussing the formation, "It is of the kind known as 'Prestonian' and is a thick bedded stone and can therefore be cut into blocks of practically any size and form. It is a stone which harmonizes with exposure to the weather. The formation is excellent for quarrying, as the stone is almost identical with the but Calgary sandstone, its absorption being about the same, while its crushing strength is about six hundred tons per cubic foot."

Hitherto Edmonton has been dependent for her building stone, not even on the southern part of the province, but upon the quarries of the middle western states. It is for this reason that a vast proportion of the stone and can therefore be cut into any size, and in fact the stone from the Glenbow mines has not proved suitable except for the smaller blocks in the structure. The stone of Wade's quarry, as the new quarries will be described, will prove vastly superior to the stone of the Glenbow mines, and the indications are that the stone will prove suitable for the best classes of work.

It has been estimated that the cost of installing the necessary plant to operate the quarries, will be $25,000.

Organization in Mesopotamia Will Open a New Empire

Would Cost $140,000,000 to Prepare 20,000,000 Acres of Best Cereal Producing Land in World for Cultivation—Famous English Engineer Reports

(Globe Cable Service.)
(By W. B. Middleton.)
Constantinople, Aug. 22.—Sir William Willocks, who has just resigned his position as advisor to the Egyptian ministry of public works for the irrigation of Mesopotamia, on account of poor health, summarizes his work in Mesopotamia in these words: "I submitted to the Ottoman government reports and plans for six projects, estimated to cost $75,000,000 for irrigation works and $65,000,000 for agricultural works. The land to be irrigated includes 3,000,000 acres, 1,000,000 of which are now in cultivation. The project for immediate execution, which will cost $25,000,000 for irrigation works and the same amount for agricultural work, includes one and a quarter million acres of the best land in Mesopotamia."

Sir William states that to him the romance of Mesopotamia, has passed away and that he confined himself to projects which were real and practicable.

An irrigation engineer who has travelled through Mesopotamia and has been struck by the great difference between the delta of the Nile and the delta of the Euphrates and Tigris. The Nile is in flood from August to October, and the rainfall water runs down the Nile valley, and the basins of Egypt and discharged back into the falling river in November. This is the system which, without further irrigation, of rich fields of wheat, barley, beans and cotton.

Such a system of irrigation is impossible in Mesopotamia. The rivers are in flood in March and April, and the floods are followed by the burning and rainless months of June, July and August. The water is too much to be practised, if any crop is to be brought to maturity. Thus, while Egypt has been for thousands of years the home of basin irrigation, Mesopotamia was the home of perennial irrigation.

According to Herodotus the whole country of Mesopotamia was studied by the ancient Greeks, and the grain country returned, two hundred fold to the sower. Cultivation depended on irrigation, which was supplied by a large number of canals. Ptolemy and Herodotus are eloquent on the subject of the agricultural wealth of the country, and Aristotle, who lived in the country, states that from the point reached by Julian's army to the shores of the Persian Gulf the country was one continuous forest of verdure.

Different Landscape
Today the traveller contemplates a different landscape. On the Upper Euphrates there are great stretches of salted land, and interspersed with bare plains and low sand-drifts. There are also alternate stretches of level country, covered with a thorny, lacustrine plant which dies down in winter, and the same bare plains which are met in the Nile. All this land is capable of easy levelling and reclamation. The presence of a great deal of time in the soil renders reclamation very easy compared with similar work in the desert clays of Egypt. It is never far away from the salt banks of the old canals and the ruins of ancient land increases in area, and then the marshes begin with their stretches of rice.

An Arid Region
The Tigris-Euphrates delta may be described as an arid region of some 5,000,000 hectares (about 12,500,000 acres). A part of this area is the delta of the Tigris. This latter is well irrigated by the Khalis, Khazir and Heled canals, and needs only good rearing heads, bridges and drains to be an area of first class irrigated land. Another area of well irrigated land is the lower Euphrates. A fair amount of irrigation is performed by "sudds" worked by mules and oxen along the whole length of the Euphrates and in scattered places on the Tigris. All these areas together form but a small fraction of the delta which is in need of irrigation on broad fronts, if anything is ever to be made of it.

Winter Cereal Crops
The crops of the winter season consist principally of wheat, barley, beans and roots, need irrigation from November to May; the summer crops of millets, bulia, beans, sesame, melons and inferior rice need irrigation from April to the middle of July. Superior rice needs irrigation from April to September. During September and October water would be needed for gardens and possibly for cotton of superior grades, when this crop assumes a higher place in the agriculture of the country than it holds today.

Of lands with requirements such as these, remarked Sir William Willocks, President Roosevelt has well said that it is water, not land, which measures civilization. The discharges of water of the Euphrates and Tigris are enormous, and should meet, if properly directed, all the requirements of perfect irrigation.

Impossible to Irrigate.
The whole of the area of 5,000,000 hectares in the delta is not capable of being irrigated at the same time. Sir William submitted an excellent scheme for the utilization of available water to the best advantage. Never in the history of Mesopotamia has the whole of the country been under irrigation one and the same time. To meet the requirements of irrigation the Tigris and Euphrates are happily placed in respect of their relative levels.

All the Mesopotamian rivers are fit for very large and such flows capable of inundating the country, and Sir William's irrigation schemes are

MUTINIOUS CHINESE THREATEN OFFICERS

Ship, Puts in at Coaling Station and Entire Crew Is Searched and Then Disarmed

(International News Service.)
Glasgow, Aug. 22.—A sensational story of mutiny on the high seas is told by Captain James G. Skene, of the Skene, belonging to the Clyde Shipping Co., Glasgow. While the vessel was on its way from New York to Adelaide, the Chinese crew of twenty-six mutinied, attacked the first engineer and threatened to kill the first engineer. The ship's coal was so badly wasted that the captain decided to put in at Mauritius 800 miles away.

From that moment, the engineers decided it unsafe to enter the straits and decided for mutual protection to keep two men always on the watch.

Captain Perks was four days without sleep, being afraid that the Chinese might fire the cargo consisting of forty-two thousand cases of naptha and benzine. When Mauritius was reached the Chinese were put ashore and natives engaged in their places.

On searching the men's quarters concealed weapons of various kinds were found, including a revolver and fifty cartridges.

ARE SEARCHING FOR PLACARD PASTER

Man Who 'Quarantined' Arlington Apartments Will Be Chastised If Captured

Some practical joker has been putting the Arlington apartments in "the yellow," the quarantine being the entire list of contagious and feared maladies of the modern medical profession, and that is saying some. Some one in a manner yet unexplained took hold of some quarantine placards which are work to be put up by the health department in cases of quarantine and a "quarantine" placard was placed upon the door. This was discovered and taken down and torn up. "Quarantine" appeared on the door, and was discovered and destroyed. This was followed by "Diphtheria." This card followed the others. The practical joker who had put up the list of contagious maladies. By the time the management of the apartments was ready to have a police quarantine placed upon the offender, he had been caught—but he was not caught.

FARMERS TO FINANCE A GIANTIC PROJECT

Provide for the Irrigation of the Kittitas Valley—Cost Will Run Into Millions.

(Union Press Service.)
Ellensburg, Wash., Aug. 22.—At a special election next month the farmers of the Kittitas Valley will vote a bond issue of several million dollars for the creation of an irrigation district by the construction of a canal from Lake Kachin in the upper part of Kittitas county to their lands.

It will be the largest irrigation project yet undertaken in the State of Washington and the most colossal scheme of its kind ever financed by farmers in any section of the country. The land to be watered lies above the existing canals in Kittitas County, which is the poorest irrigated district within reach of Seattle, Tacoma and Puget Sound markets. Kittitas County is the largest dry producing county in the northwest and for some years has furnished the war department the hay from Lake Kachin and the agricultural years thousands of acres, have been set out in apples, pears and small fruits.

CONSERVATION ENFORCEMENT OF RECIPROCAL TREATY LOWER ALBERTA PRICES

Conservative Candidate W. A. Griesbach Addresses Norwood Electors and Attempts to Show that This Province Would Suffer Through Passing of Agreement

Drawing a bird picture of the things which may come to pass in Canada upon the passage of the reciprocity treaty, Major W. A. Griesbach opened his election campaign in the Conservative interest at a meeting in the Norwood hall last evening. His discussion of the treaty was in the main a repetition of the statements of policy announced on the day of the Conservative convention. Major Griesbach, following the usual process and confining himself to tariff schedules and wheat prices, while promising that if elected he will do his utmost to effect the removal of the tariff to some point without the city. This local issue being evidently considered an excellent campaign cry. About 100 supporters of the Conservative candidate were present during the course of the evening.

That the Conservative party and Mr. Griesbach would accept of the reciprocity for the untimely election was admitted by W. H. Clegg, president of the Conservative association of the district who presided. Mr. Clegg declared that the election had doubtless been fixed by the Conservative party, and that for this credit was due to the leader of the opposition. It was further stated that the meeting of the Laurier government to submit to the people a treaty of such far reaching importance.

The decay of the British empire and the end of all things was forecasted by W. H. Brown, as the inevitable outcome of the passage of the reciprocity pact. Mr. Brown appealed to his fight against the treaty to the fact that since upon its defeat depended the very existence of the empire.

Rouandy denouncing the Liberal party as a party of opportunists, A. Williamson Taylor went on to discuss the financial condition of provincial natural resources, waxing cynical in his reference to the promise of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. A woman, convinced against her will, said the power, was of the same opinion. The speaker had no great faith in Sir Wilfrid's promises. Taylor presented a series of argument against reciprocity which he modestly described as unassailable. No man possessed of the smallest degree of intelligence could fail to be convinced of the utter folly of the bill. It would be destructive of Canadian nationality.

Plunging at once into a discussion of the trade treaty, W. A. Griesbach quoted at length from blue-books and tables of railway statistics, his object being explained to show that Conservative reciprocity in the '90's and Liberal reciprocity today were two entirely different propositions. The Conservatives who were formerly in favor of reciprocal trade arrangements had now become only opposed to the present bill. To ask Canadians to accept reciprocity today, which Canada had grown to detest, was the height of folly. As well said the Major, might a young man expect to win his lady's favor by a present of a rac dog, as the Liberal government to satisfy the wealthy, natural Canada of our times with a policy of reciprocity.

W. A. Griesbach contended that a lowering of the United States' tariff must have been effected in the near future, whether Canada had been consulted or no. The Democrats would have demanded a reduction. Hon. A. C. Rutherford, the speaker however, tonight clearly defined his position on reciprocity. Major Griesbach quoted from an interview alleged to have been given by Mr. Rutherford in an English publication, the Canadian Gazette, in which Mr. Rutherford was represented as having declared that the American tariff would be lowered anyway. The Democrats would have themselves effected the change when they came into power.

The candidate offered an explanation of the high wheat price prevailing in Minneapolis today. From 10 to 12 cents per bushel was paid for wheat in the American city than in Winnipeg, because the subsidiary industries are established in the former made the value of the product greater. Because the Minneapolis man made use of every portion of the grain, he was able to pay the higher figure.

Yet, the Major contended, the abolition of the tariff would reduce the Minneapolis price, and the Canadian farmer who might have hoped to benefit by the removal of the tariff wall, would find himself no better off than before. Having said his hearers to accept this thesis, the speaker went on to contend that while prices the world over are not affected by the tariffs of either Canada or the United States, the Minneapolis price was the determining factor. All other agricultural products than wheat were higher in Alberta than in the States. Horses and cattle were dearer and of purer blood in Alberta. The abolition of the tariff on these articles would inflict lasting injury on the Alberta farmer.

"More protection for the farmer," Major Griesbach laid down as a plank in his platform. If the Canadian farmer would cultivate his home market, he would find this a most profitable one. It were far better to do this than to invite the competition in agricultural products of the farmers of the great republic to the south. "We ought to protect the farmer as we do other Canadian industries," the Major said. The reversal of Canada's fiscal policy would adversely affect British investments in Canada. If we allowed Amer-contractors.

The second proposition is that the Coates people build the plant with their own money and operate it themselves until such time as the city desires to take it over, whether it be one year, two, three, five, or what number, just so six months notice be given, the city under the second proposition could have representatives on the board of directors, the company's books would be always open to the city, etc. This is practically a municipal plant with company management. And the third proposition is that a straight franchise be given similar to a franchise desired so much by Cyrus Eaton.

And the proposition of Mr. Hughes has laid upon the table until Tuesday evening also.

Time is Short. Unless there is something done shortly toward securing gas for the city it will be two years instead of one before it will be possible to supply this much needed commodity. If the gas plant is started at this time ample time will be given to the manufacture of necessary machinery, the same can be made this winter and placed on the city by next spring. The installation will be done next summer and by this time next year Edmonton will have gas.

His action is shortly taken, sufficient time will not be allowed to do the great amount of detail and preliminary work, preparatory to letting the order for machinery. And gas may be delayed for two years.

Should the gas plant be decided immediately, much work toward laying mains could be done this fall, and foundations for the buildings could be put in this fall to set and become hard and substantial before they were built upon in the spring.

FAVOR LEGISLATION SIMILAR TO LEMIEUX ACT (Canadian Associated Press) London, Aug. 23.—Montague Barlow, M.P., and Allen Baker, M.P., both recommended the adoption of legislation similar to the Canadian Lemieux act as an important step in our legislation settling industrial disputes. In view of his appointment on the strike commission Arthur Henderson, ex-chairman of the labor party is postponing his visit to Canada.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE. Premier Sifton returned to the city this morning from the south. He spent a portion of the morning in conference with Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior.
